A picture as a work of visual art is made on a child’s encouragement and desire on the reality of life he experiences, both structurally related to the art education he is studying; and through free expression of his willingness. There are many child's artistic activities, one of which is drawing, it is an example of behavioral work, which he sometimes creates it not to be separated whether it is an activity of playing or expression (Pamadhi, 2008). The condition of picture expression by elementary school children (SD) currently is a cultural visualization phenomenon having meanings as reality, and development in their environments. Each of the children's drawing works is a visual element with an interesting symbolic meaning to be understood as a universal language.

The encouragement and willingness for artistic expression as an artist can be caused by any problems and experiences of cultural traditions they believe in. Any things related to tradition are forms of representation and abstraction from the reality of elementary school children life. It can be stated that children’s drawings are signs and markers of the dynamics of life found in a beautiful, happy, family-friendly system based on any beliefs or religions that it embraces. The encouragement for artistic expression found in children can also be influenced by development of global culture in everyday human life.

The existence of a child at the age of low grade according to (Tumurang, 2006, in Kustiawan 2012) shows the characteristics, among others are: (1) an obedient attitude to traditional game rules, (2) there is a tendency to praise himself, (3) prefer to compare himself with other children, and (4) there is a correlation between physical condition and school performance. While in the high-class age, they have the characteristics: (1) attention to practical concrete everyday life, (2) realistic, having curiosity and willingness to learn, (3) enjoy making peer group to play together, (4) complete tasks and activities freely and try to solve any problems by themselves.

According to Solehuddin. 2000 (in Masitoh, 2007) each child is different from one another, children have their own innate, interests, capabilities, and background of life. In further, it is express the basic natures of children, namely: (a) a child expresses his behavior in a relative spontaneous manner, (b) a child is active and energetic, (c) a child is egocentric, (d) a child has a strong curiosity and enthusiasm for many things, (e) a child is explorative and brave as the adventurer, (f) a child is rich in fantasy, lack of consideration in acting, short attention, fun of playing. However, at this age, children have shown the most potential learning period. It is also referred that at this time, it is as a period of school compatibility, which the attention and behavior of children’s lives are filled with learning activities on various things, whether it is done at school, home, and environment surrounding the community where they lives; it is also performed with an expression of joy just like they are playing.

The current development of global culture, technology and information seems to provide effects on the imaginative ideas, themes, and symbolic meanings in the drawings made by elementary school children. Then, there is a phenomenon of picture diversity by elementary school children that is not bound and limited to the place where the child is. Although, a child lives in a remote village in a far distance with urban environment, but by the information and impressions presented on television, the children will quickly be able to access any new technological developments, information and new circumstances wherever it happens occur. This cultural phenomenon is certainly also believed to have an impact on the aesthetic understanding for elementary school children. This condition is certainly different from the life of elementary school children in the past. In the past, drawings made by elementary school children did not present any images showing the diversity of objects or new forms such as those we find out at the phenomenon of current image creation. Examples of elementary school picture phenomenon are presented in the drawings of television, hand phone, parabola, computer, telecommunication tower, wheel toys, game toys, flyover, multi-level buildings, MOL, toll road, hot air balloon, flyover, formula car, imaginative figures, Batman, Superman, Barby dolls, and other actual events existing in their environment.

Based on the history of human life and its relics, it is found the existence of symbols related to the existing culture at that time. The symbols are interpreted as identity, markers, characteristic of human community found in a place or region. The symbols created are in the forms of drawings, writings, cultural artefacts (objects), music, songs, signs, cues and others. Similarly, life of elementary school children with all of their activities and abilities also continue to grow in line with the development and progress of their culture. Children in art activities, especially drawing, also have the ability to create or present identity, in the form of visual symbols based on their drawing idea / creation that they create. In this regards, it can be found that there are symbolic meanings in the children’s drawings.

Creation of various kinds of visual artworks can be understood as symbolic, or for symbolization according to any ideas, or anything to be expressed according to its creators. Artwork drawings are created by using visual elements according to the creations intended by their creators. The visual elements include dots, lines, shapes/forms, colors, textures (impression materials), contents, space and light. Art is the activity and the result of human beauty expression through media of line, color, texture, field, volume and space (Salam, 2001).

Through the use of visual elements, a form of drawing art can express symbolic meanings either related to reality (life), one’s experience, natural events, emotional social conditions and developed knowledge. The diversity of visual artworks includes artworks by elementary school children or at the age. All types of visual artworks certainly cannot be separated with certain symbolic meanings.

The symbolic meanings are based on the understanding on the function / purpose of its creation. Works of art are categorized into fine art and applied art. The fine art is a type of art which in its process of creation, it provides more emphasis on the expression of ideas, aesthetic-artistic value feelings and is not intended as a practical functional item. For examples are paintings, sculptures and others. The applied art is a type of art which in its process of creation, it provides more consideration on the value of function / practical use and the beauty of its shape. Nevertheless, if it is seen from the presentation of works of arts, it still expresses beautiful shapes. The examples of visual art works are handicraft objects, building arts.

Likewise, understanding the symbolic meanings, these can be categorized based on the forms of visual artwork into three groups: (1) Two dimensional visual art (dwimatra) with the characteristics of flat impression and only providing one-direction of beauty. The examples are pictures, paintings and prints. (2) Three dimensional visual art (trimatra), has the characteristics of whole (overall = wungkul) impression and can give the impression of beauty from several directions. The examples are art sculpture, building art, some handicrafts, decoration and other arts. (3) Two and three dimensional visual arts (dwitri-matra), has characteristics to show the impression of beauty in a flat and full impression. For example is high relief also called as embossed images.

Based on the above description, it is confirmed that the children drawing seen from its form is a two-dimensional visual artwork having certain beauty and uniqueness symbolic meanings. To understand the symbolic meaning values in the children’s drawings, among others can be based on the benchmark of an assessment, either absolutism, anarchy, or relativism. The symbolic meaning of absolutism is the agreement reached through the deliberations or conventions that have been made and applied in the community of a society as long as there is no change. The symbolic meaning of anarchy is a subjective judgment by a person according to his will by looking at the agreed limitations. While the symbolic meaning of relativism is an assessment using not absolute aesthetic criteria or in other words according to the individual sense of assessment. There is subjectivity according to person taste to interpret the symbols found in visual artwork.

It can be meant that the symbolic nature of visual artwork is an act of human that can make something more useful for itself, the surroundings consisting elements of beauty, attractive, according to the agreed value standard. In this context, the existence of children’s drawing is believed to be the object of study to be appreciated and understood as a unique, creative, expressive symbolic meaning as a form of children visual artwork.

It is interesting to study and review the subject matter of children’s drawing certainly in a more comprehensive manner related to how the phenomenon of visual elements and symbolic meanings of children's drawings in the present era. Based on a research: "A Study of Aesthetics and Typology of Elementary School Children Drawings in East Java" (Sumanto, et al., 2011) the results are as follows. (1) children's drawing is a form of creative ideas representation, uniqueness, individual expression, children expression on their experiences, reality, and imaginative power. Each drawing has a specific, interesting, dynamic, straightforward visual element, and there will be no any the same impression between one drawing and another. Children’s drawing relates to themselves, nature, surrounding environment, culture, art, animal world, experiences, activities, natural events, objects as public places, imaginative, and others. (2) Every child basically faces a development period of visual expression according to their innate abilities (talents), although there is a variation on their talents. The development period of each children’s drawing seems to not always go hand in hand with or at the same time as their ages. There are children having ability to draw faster than their periodization age, and vice versa there are also slow ones. (3) in general, there are more portion of typology, style, and impression of children's drawing space in the type of Visual, and just small portion in non-visual (Haptic) type. (4) The impression of children’s drawing space is seen in the physical structure of visual elements showing diversity of space impression creations: laying down, stacking, cover-closing, bird perspective, and downsizing.

The result of the research titled “Study of Characteristic of Expression Picture of State Elementary School Karangbesuki 4 Malang Students” concludes that: there is 39% of students’ drawings having theme of nature, there is also students' tendency to use colored pencil and crayon to color with dash-based hatching technique. There is 58% of drawing having stereotype objects and there is 51% having buildup in the creation of its impression.
Analysis on symbolic meaning of drawing arts by elementary school children space. This shows that: (1) the expression of elementary school students' drawing characteristic is mostly having the theme of nature with the objects such as plants, animals, mountains, sea, (2) in general, the students’ expression drawing is in type of visual, small parts is haptic and mixed images, (3) most of periodization drawing is chart, and some others face faster period of drawing than his age (Maghfiroh, 2012).

From the above research findings according to the author, there is a phenomenon of uniqueness on the children's drawing visualization that can be analyzed from the study of visual elements and symbolic meaning of the children's drawings. The study of art is focused on describing the diversity of visual elements found in every children drawing work. The study of the drawing symbolic meanings is intended to describe the tendency of the meanings, signs, cultural symbols that is presented, and is individual. Each shape of children's drawing has a certain unique symbolic meaning value that is presented. In this case, the children's drawing is an expression of message, ideas and emotions by using visual symbols according to each child’s style characteristics.

Based on the problems presented above, the author believes that it is very urgent to conduct the study of visual elements and the symbolic meaning of children's drawing. In addition that the object research has attractiveness and importance to study, there is also not any fundamental research. Therefore, the research on the elementary school children drawings in East Java has considerations: (a) the elementary school children’s drawing in East Java is a form of the diversity of social-cultural and geographical life characteristics in East Java, Madura and other ethnic in East Java, (b) the descriptive information on the visual elements and symbolic meaning of the children’s drawing is one of the important assets of knowledge and culture to be studied and preserved, (c) as the author knows, recently, there is no research results on visual elements and symbolic meaning of children’s drawing that can be utilized in the art education in Elementary School level.

The study of visual elements and symbolic meanings of children's drawings is part of a study on “Theme Review and Children’s Drawing Objects” published in the Journal of Elementary Schools (Sumanto, 2014) with the following results. First, diversity on children's drawing themes relates to the illustration of an idea into an image according to the children’s creative style. The diversity of children's drawing themes is the themes of Myself, Playing, Animals, Activity / Hobby, Landscape, Public Places or Objects, Arts, Performing Arts, Atmosphere, Place / Environment, Events, Religious, Sports, Imaginative, and Poster. Out of these various themes, there is a similarity of titles presented on each drawing, and there are also differences. The themes are related to the objects of people, animals, plants, imaginative objects having so many characteristics of style or manners to describe them. The theme of children's drawings is a manifestation of life's illustration and expresses natural surroundings, human behavior, animals, and cultural products and activities according to the children’s emotional power.

Second, the diversity of “Objects or Shapes” presented in the children's drawings is generally in the objects of human, animal, plants, cultural objects, and other imaginative creations. Each of the children's drawings can be recognized as having the same object display, and there are also similar objects, and there are also different objects. The elementary school children mostly often or tend to make drawings of natural landscape, these can be identified the diversity of displayed drawing objects.
This research on the visual element and symbolic meaning of elementary school children’s drawing is intended in general to describe the diversity of elements and the symbolic meaning in elementary school children’s drawings in East Java. The specific purposes are to describe: (1) the diversity of visual elements (lines, shapes, colors) of the children's drawings, (2) the diversity of symbolic meaning found in the drawing implied in the title of elementary school children’s drawings in East Java.

Methods

The design used is descriptive qualitative. The qualitative research is always descriptive, meaning that the research results are analyzed in the form of detailed description on a phenomenon. This approach is chosen because it is in accordance with the characteristics of qualitative research (Miles and Huberman 1992, Sutopo 1990, Rokhmat, 2004), which is very suitable and provides an opportunity to provide qualitative understanding and explanation on a phenomenon in a depth and holistic manner.

In examining the visual elements and symbolic meanings of children's drawings, it is based on the approach of artistry, and characteristics of children's drawing visualization based on both physical structure and esthetic structure. According to Sachari (2004) by the aesthetic approach through art criticism, an object of art can be observed from symbolic meaning, social meaning, cultural meaning, beauty meaning, economic meaning, or religious meaning. In this case, each art object will present the dimensions of dynamics, style, technique, aesthetic ideology, lifestyle influences, relationships with behavior and environment. Based on the research design, the source of research data is obtained from documentation on the elementary school children’s drawing in East Java. In this case, the researcher acts as an instrument serving a role as observing and collecting data in depth.

The research subjects are documents of elementary school children’s drawings from 24 Cities / Regencies in East Java in the period of 2011-2013. The research subjects were collected by collecting documentation on the children's drawings from the sample areas of Surabaya and Malang city, Blitar city, Malang regency, and Jombang, and the small cities such as Bangkalan, Trenggalek and Lumajang districts and others. The instrument used is the identity observation instrument used to collect data related to: the origin of the children's drawing, name, age, sex, size of drawing, and year of production. Instruments of guidelines for documentation are used to collect data related to: (a) visual elements namely: lines, colors, and other elements, (c) the drawing media / tools used and art techniques; and (c) the symbolic meanings.

The data and information collected were analyzed by using qualitative descriptive qualitative analysis and artistic analysis analysis. The analysis steps were taken through the processes of reduction, presentation and verification of data (Miles and Huberman 1992, Sutopo 1990 in Rokhmat, 2004). The data analysis was conducted through the method of analysis of art with stages: (1) Data review and reduction. The data reduction is intended as a step or process of eliminating or removing any unnecessary data, simplifying, focusing, sorting or selecting and sharpening the data obtained. Sumandyo (2006) stated that the data reduction is supposed to simplify, abstract and transform rough data from some field notes since the beginning of data collection. (2) the data presentation is intended as an analytical process to compile any data findings in the form of tables and descriptive expositions from general to specific subject and to provide meaningful data.

Out of hundreds of elementary school children’s drawing studied, it is conducted the identification on symbolic meaning found in the children's drawings that meets the predefined indicator requirements. In this case, actually on each elementary school children drawing, it has a unique symbolic meaning and will not have the same impression between one image and another image. Although there is the same size of drawing but, in the visual elements, it can be seen different lines, shapes, colors, appearances / compositions. Symbolic Meaning of Myself
There is a variation on the symbolic meaning of myself in the children's drawing work. The symbolic meaning of myself is expressed in the form of any drawings related to the children favorite objects, going to school, school friends, friends, dancing together, hanging out with friends and others. My self means as the child's self symbol. The existence of each child must be related to the personal or small human figures who are in physical and psychological development. The children are also not separated with the ability of intelligence, skills, fun, activities done, goods / objects that they have, desire, imagination, and other selfness. The condition of creativity drawing on a child can reflect the existence of symbolic meanings such as the meaning of my activities (the activities done by the child), the meaning of objects it possesses (for example My house), and also the meanings related to something that they like (My preferences) and the ideals. (My ideals and preferences).

Work by: Bagus Pamungkas (10 years old), SD Ampeldento 2 Malang. Title: My Favourite Vehicle

The means of transportation taken as my favorite object in this drawing is in the form of Railway, Sedan Car, Helicopter, and Ship. This shows various means of transportation as the favorite of elementary school children. The impression of space in the drawing is stacking, where there is an impression of space with the characteristics of object is drawn closely at the bottom of the drawing area, while the objects located farther away are put at the top of the drawing area. This is shown by the railway object pictured below the drawing plane, the car is drawn above it, and in the drawing, there is a train object beneath the image of plane colored in orange, pink and blue. The object of car is colored with orange and pink. The Helicopter object is colored in light blue with dark blue gradations. While the overall color of glass on the entire transportation is colored with white. There are also plants colored in light green with dark green gradations. There are any interesting or memorable experiences for the children such as activities done like bathing with friends on the river, taking trains, dancing with friends, hanging out with friends and others. Likewise, there is a child's selfness to declare his possession through the drawing visualization. Expressed by (Pamadhi, 2008) that one of the children's drawing styles is a portrait style namely the image of a person's face, such as a father, a mother, an elder, an idolized figure, including a portrait of himself; also an example of a good friend, My House, My Private Room, My Classroom, My Teacher in the classroom, My Classroom, Birthday and more.

Symbolic Meaning of Playing
Playing for elementary school children has become a part of everyday life having no deadlines, places, different types of playing either done alone or with friends at house, school and elsewhere. The meaning of playing for children is also related to the meaning of time. To get a fun atmosphere or fun in paying for children and their experiences, it should be done in one place at certain moment. For example playing on the beach, playing at night, playing in solitude to remove silence (Sumanto, 2013)
The playing activities and experiences is expressed in the form of various drawing such as the following works.

Work by: Indah Cahyandini (12 years old), SDN 4 Penganjuran Banyuwangi.
Title: Playing Jump Rope.

The prominent element found in the drawing of four children playing a jump rope above is a beautiful place with a low walled brick wall environment behind it. There are also trees, flowers and mountains with the morning atmosphere because there is a yellow impression in some trees. The theme taken by this work is environment. Because it describes the atmosphere of mountains and activity by a number of children in yellow, green and red colors. The tool used by the child to draw is crayons. Periodization of realism in her village presents beautiful and peaceful atmosphere behind the walls of 4 children who are playing jump rope. Indah drawing does not imitate other drawing or subject, she draws with nonvisual style. The impression of space in the drawing is the perspective of birds because it is seen the walls that are drawn curved and behind the wall, it can be seen trees drawn in diverse manner. The composition of drawing is balanced between the right and left sides as it is balanced by the trees on the left and the mountain on the right.

The uniqueness of drawing is to have fine lines like bricks on the wall that are looked neat, the trees are lined up so it is pleasing the eyes. The color gradations have also been seen starting from the trees, the soil, the mountains, the sun. In addition, there is the written “Standby 3” meaning that the mountain behind them has a status of standby 3. This drawing tells that although in a vigilance condition, the children still play to avoid any restless mind towards the standby status of the mountain. I interviewed Indah during break time, Indah said that she liked to draw scenery, she liked yellow color.

Regarding the symbolic meaning of “Playing” which is the source of ideas in the children's drawings, it shows a correlation between the life developments of children who are playing. In general, there is an activity of playing performed by the children namely playing Jump Rope, Yoyo, Ball, Marbles, Kites and others. Likewise, the children want to express the experiences of playing by showing with whom the children play and where the children play. This is confirmed by the drawing titles as follows: Playing with Sister, Father, Neighbor. Playing in Gardens, Rivers, Neighbors, and Parks.
Symbolic Meaning of Activity
The symbolic meaning of activity on children's drawing has quite diverse presentations and is interesting to appreciate. There are activities performed by the children themselves, the activities performed with others (friends, brother, sister, family and others). Likewise, the symbolic meaning of the activity and the sport is a representation of children's lives about various activities (hobbies) attracting attention to be expressed into drawings.

The children's sensitivity and intelligence are shown in their ability to interpret an activity and also good hobby done by the children, or done by people in their environment. In this context, there is a variety of activities in human life whether daily work activities, or activities leading as a pleasure or hobby, both are also a concern in the thoughts and feelings of elementary school children. This can be seen from parts of the diversity of children's drawings that clearly and specifically express the symbolic meaning of various activities (hobbies). There is a symbolic meaning of routine activities performed by a person, by children every day. For example for children, the routine activities are going to school, studying, reciting, praying (worship) and others. There are also activities performed by a person as a profession or livelihood according to the types of work. The following are examples of drawings illustrating the symbolic meaning of activities (hobbies) that attract the attention of elementary school children.

The elements of line, shape, shape, waking, color, texture, lighting elements of the drawing are classified in a pseudo-naturalist period as they represent more concrete and natural drawing of objects such as the original. This period is also shown by the calculation of quality of three dimensions (perspective space) and lighting on the drawing. The activities performed by children with family, friends, and activities performed by human beings around the child's life are parts of expression that can be found in the children's drawings. Titles of the drawing are with the theme of “Activity”, namely People Painting, Family Work, Family Activity, Planting Flowers, Adventure, Persami, In Zoo, Mountain Journey, Shepherd, Hilda is Writing, Going to Night Market, Going to Museum, in the classroom.

It is seen also something like a hill or a mountain or land, there is also a flower laying in the tilt drawing. The drawing tends to be haptic, the style of drawing is dominated by the child’s imagination. What she has seen is expressed according to her creative power freely as it is seen from the drawing of shape of a factory building, smoke above the factory, this show that the child’s drawing is factory. The color applied to the drawing is pretty good, it does not give full color for the drawing so that it looks pale and less attractive for viewers. Impression of space presented in the drawing above is the impression of reduction and stacking. The diminution impression is on the shrinking drawing of ocean getting to the end. The stacking impression is on the drawing of boat which the drawing remains the same even though one boat is far ahead another, the boat ahead should be drawn smaller.

Work by: Faradina Wahyu (13 years old). SD Mangliawan Malang. Title: Fountains

The symbolic meaning of Faradina's drawing is the objects of waterfalls, trees, grass, shrubs, rocks, bridges, water, earth, compositing the impression of uniting appropriately. The impression of drawing space still tends to the bird’s perspective. There are the drawing objects as if those are seen from above. There is a unity between one object and another, such as a waterfall is located in a dense forest, there are bridges and rivers in the waterfall flow as the center of attention on the drawing.

There is an emerging perspective, but based on its own eyesight and it has not shown any actual comparison. Typology of waterfall landscape drawing is more visual-realistic. Although the child's drawing pays less attention to the proportion or making diminution on farther objects, but the child is already using appropriate colors to the actual objects. The color of chocolate at trees, blue at water, green at leaves, brown at soil, and black at stone indicate student's accuracy in describing the actual situation. The shape of object in the drawing is expressed appropriately, so that it creates feelings of pleasure and melancholy. The drawings are expressed with egocentric sensations such as forests, environments, waterfalls, and others. The characteristics of the child’s drawings are dynamic, meaning that the drawing adjusts to the actual shape such as the drawing of trees, bridges, water, soil, rock, although the waterfall drawing is less perspective.
